People may tell lies because they want to seem more intelligent, successful or more powerful. A lot of people tell lies simply to get people's attention. More people do this to avoid being made fun of. All those who have this evil quality share a belief that a lie may make a person good and that the truth may harm him. They rarely think of people's trust or their own honour. Those people should realise that human relationships are built on trust not suspicion, and that lying may bring temporary gain, but it will certainly bring permanent shame. The common saying "Nobody believes a liar" actually means that nobody respects a liar.

One day, three thieves saw a farmer coming back from the market and carrying a goat on his back. They made a plan to get the goat for themselves. They waited for him at three different places on his way. The first thief stopped him and said, "Why are you carrying a dog on your back?" When the farmer said that it was a goat not a dog, the thief laughed loudly and walked away. The second thief stopped the farmer and asked him the same question and the farmer said that he carried a goat not a dog. The smart farmer understood the thieves' plan and decided to deceive them. He hid his goat in a hut on the way and carried a small dog he found there. When he saw the third thief, he walked to him, gave him the dog and said to him, "Your other two friends are sending you this fat goat as a present."
